If you would like more information on this subject, here is some recommended reading:

Angell, Marcia, The Truth About Drug Companies, How They Deceive Us and What To Do About It, Angell, former editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, presents a searing indictment of "big pharma" as corrupt and corrupting: of Congress, through huge campaign contributions; of the FDA, which is funded in part by the very companies it oversees; and, perhaps most shocking, of members of the medical profession and its institutions.

Carter, M.D., Ph.D., James P., Racketeering in Medicine: The Suppression of Alternatives, Hampton Roads Publishing, VA, 1992/93. Professor Carter considers it his public duty to reveal the corruption at the very highest levels of organized medicine. He documents names, places and events. "Behind closed doors, Organized Med inflicts severe pressure on alternative practitioners to halt their methods. They are ostracized from their peers and endure frightening attacks alleging lack of ethics, fraud and other fabrications; even mental competence can be questioned. Alternative practitioners are falsely accused of exploiting their patients for money...Libelled and slandered as quacks/charlatans, they endure unwarranted attacks and trumped-up charges - not objective investigation...Negative peer review (judgment of colleagues through published criticism) is usually authored by doctors and researchers who know little, sometimes nothing at all, about the alternative methods they have been asked or directed to criticize. Sloppy or contrived research has, at times, been used to debunk an alternative therapy. This inaccurate peer review blocks alternatives from gaining approval as accepted medical practice...Most literature searches begin and end with the Index Medicus or its electronic counterpart, the Medline computer database...Few physicians and medical students know that only 10% of the world's total biomedical literature is located in those databases..." Dr. Carter leads the reader to the inescapable realization that we must become more aware of health-care practices and speak up for our right to the best available medical treatment.

Epstein, Dr. Samuel S., John Jr. Conyers, David R. Obey, The Politics of Cancer Revisited, East Ridge Press, 1998. In this 770 page book Dr. Epstein documents organized medicine's cronyism, conflicts of interest, and subservience to the giant drug companies. Due to poor outcomes from standard cancer treatments, Dr. Epstein emphasizes the importance of prevention of cancer and documents the American Cancer Society's refusal to lobby for any measures that will reduce the incidence of cancer or to spend funds on researching alternative treatments for cancer. Dr. Epstein shows how promising nontoxic alternative treatments have been excluded by this oligopoly of self-interested players, many of whom are supposed to be the guardians of the public health.

Griffin, G. Edward, World Without Cancer, American Media, Westlake Village, California, 1997. In addition to telling the story of vitamin B12, this book takes a detailed look at the IG Farben industrial cartel that financed Hitler's rise to power, built and operated Auschwitz and other work/death camps, and the companies on both sides of the Atlantic who were/are cartel members. After World War II the cartel was ostensibly disbanded. The German cartel leaders received short prison sentences, and the German-owned cartel assets in the United States that had been seized during the war were purchased from the US government by American cartel members. The wartime chemical plants and expertise developed by cartel members are the origin of both chemical agriculture (that causes cancer) and pharmaceuticals / chemotherapy (that pretend to treat cancer and other diseases while creating a long list of side effects that require further treatment). The list of cartel members is a veritable "who's who" of famous corporate names on both sides of the Atlantic. This book shines the light of day on the ruthlessness and dark history of the cartel members who still pull the political strings and who have had an additional half century since WWII to build and consolidate their power. These are the people who profit from chemical agriculture and your cancer treatment. Dealing effectively with them is unfinished business left over from the second world war. About this book, Dr. Dean Burk said, "A clear and revolutionary insight into both the science and politics of cancer therapy." Dr. Burk is one of the National Cancer Institute's co-founders.

Lanctot, Guylaine, The Medical Mafia : How to Get Out of It Alive and Take Back Our Health and Wealth, Here's the Key, Inc., 1995. "The medical establishment works closely with the drug multinationals whose main objective is profits, and whose worst nightmare would be an epidemic of good health. Lots of drugs MUST be sold. In order to achieve this, anything goes: lies, fraud, and kickbacks. Doctors are the principal salespeople of the drug companies. They are rewarded with research grants, gifts, and lavish perks. The principal buyers are the public - from infants to the elderly - who MUST be thoroughly medicated and vaccinated...at any cost! Why do the authorities forbid alternative medicine? Because they are serving the industry, and the industry cannot make money with herbs, vitamins, and homeopathy. They cannot patent natural remedies. That is why they push synthetics. They control medicine, and that is why they are able to tell medical schools what they can and cannot teach."

Lewis, Charles, The Buying of Congress: How Special Interests Have Stolen Your Right to Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness, Avon, 1998. "Government of the people, by the people and for the people" has become "government of the people, by the special interests and for the special interests." The American election system has been skillfully re-engineered so that huge sums of money are required by each congress person to win an election. This ensures that only those who represent wealthy individuals and corporations can afford to run for public office and makes every member of congress beholden to those who provide funds for election campaigns. By corrupting the election process in this manner, congress has sold out the American people and committed treason.

Moss, Ph.D., Ralph W., The Cancer Industry - The Classic Expose on the Cancer Establishment, Paragon House, NY, 1991. His war with the cancer establishment began when Dr. Moss witnessed first hand the research being done at Sloan-Kettering on vitamin B17, also known as laetrile. The scientists in the labs found vitamin B17 to be very effective, yet the research that was finally published disparaged vitamin B17 as useless. This so enraged Dr. Moss that he left Sloan-Kettering and documented the affair in his book. The real conclusions by Dr. Kanematsu Sugiura who was Sloan-Kettering's senior researcher and who spent five years studying B17 were:

- B17 inhibited the growth of tumors
- it stopped the metastasizing of cancer in mice
- it relieved pain
- it acted as a cancer preventative
- it improved general health.

The Politics of Cancer

Last week, the pharmaceutical maker Genentech, Inc. warned doctors that the breast cancer drug Herceptin is linked to 15 deaths and dozens of other adverse reactions in patients. The company sent a letter out to doctors last week saying these adverse effects include allergic shock and extreme respiratory distress. An estimated 23,000 patients have received Herceptin.

Well, today on Democracy Now, we are going to take a look at the politics of cancer—from the pharmaceutical companies to the organizations that claim to be fighting the disease. We turn now to Dr. Samuel Epstein, Professor of Environmental and Occupational Medicine and Chair of the Cancer Prevention Coalition.

Dr. Epstein has exposed the American Cancer Society—one of the wealthiest non-profits—which gets much of its money from surgeons, top drug companies and corporations that he says profit from the cancer industry and have little interest in cancer prevention.
